Dear Friend,

I had the pleasure of spending the President's Day week working in the District and would like to take the opportunity to fill you in on some of my experiences. As you can imagine, these economic times are full of discussions as to how governments (local, state, and federal) can best address instability in the financial markets and the resulting impacts across industries. (For my thoughts on the economic crisis, please see my interview with KCRA here.)

Congressman Lungren meets with SynapSense Solutions in Folsom, winner of the U.S. Department of Energy's Innovator Award, about participation in a federal green energy initiative.

My week was full and productive, spending countless hours meeting with small business owners, local government officials, and constituents. On Wednesday night, having spent time earlier in the day with Senator Boxer and the Public Policy Institute of California, I held my second Tele Town Hall of the year to discuss your thoughts on and concerns with the recently passed Economic Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009, or the "stimulus" package. (For my post-Tele Town Hall thoughts, please see the video on my website.)

It was my privilege to participate in the ceremony honoring the 50th Anniversary of the Aerospace Museum of California, located at McClellan Business Park. The Aerospace Museum is a true gem in our region, providing educational resources to students and supporting various programs, such as the California Aerospace Academy.

Friday I enjoyed the opportunity to recognize an accomplished young man at the Phoenix School in Folsom. From coverage by either News 10 or the Sacramento Bee, you may already be aware of Michael Donnelly, an 8th grade student who placed 3rd nationally in the InvestWrite Competition. The competition focuses on a learning resource called the Stock Market Game, teaching students to consider how to manage and invest finances in a responsible way to reach goals. I asked Michael what his strategy was and he offered advice that can be of benefit to us all: "Stay calm, stay informed, and stay diversified."

Congressman Lungren presents a certificate to Michael Donnelly who placed third nationally in the InvestWrite competition.

This past District Work Period was of great benefit to me, enabling me to carry your thoughts, concerns, challenges, and successes back to our great nation's Capitol.

I thank you for your passionate input as we continue to address our nation's challenges and opportunities. If my office can be of assistance, please be encouraged to call. My District Office is right here in Gold River and can be reached at (916) 859-9906.

Sincerely,

Daniel E. Lungren
Member of Congress
